Description

Lviv. Church of St. Paraskeva-Pyatnytsya

The temple was built in the oldest part of the city, on the foundations of the church of the XIII-XIV centuries. The location of the object outside the city fortifications explains the presence in its architecture of the features of the defensive building. Construction dates from 1643-1645; reconstruction - in 1908 (restoration, new completion of the tower, architect M.Luzhetsky). In the architecture of the church, elements of late Gothic style are combined with the traditions of Ukrainian and Moldavian-Volos temple construction.

Later additions are associated with the influences of historicist architecture (tower dome). The iconostasis of the Pyatnytska Church dated to the first half of the XVII century, has an exceptional value and was restored in the 1980s.
